Introduction

The Cooperative Election Study, or CES, seeks to study how Americans view Congress and hold their representatives accountable during elections, how they voted and their electoral experiences, and how their behavior and experiences vary with political geography and social context. This dataset is a panel study where the same respondents were interviewed before and after the 2020 election, before and after the 2022 election, and then again before and after the 2024 election.

The 2020 CES interviewed 61,000 adults who answered a common battery of questions before and after the election. The 2022 Recontact Survey includes a subset of 11,015 of these respondents who were re-interviewed before and after the 2022 midterm election. The 2024 Recontact Survey includes a subset of 6,175 of these respondents who were re-interviewed before and after the 2024 presidential election. The pre- and post-election common content questionnaire from 2020 was repeated for these respondents in 2022 and then additional questions were added to the 2022 wave, as well as in the 2024 wave. The pre-election wave of the 2024 questionnaire was in the field from October 1 to November 4; the post-election wave was in the field from November 6 to December 10.

Data Release 1 occurred on April 4, 2025. Data for this study is archived and available at the Harvard University Dataverse.

This guide describes the methodology behind the overall study and the measures and variables developed for the Common Content for the 2020-24 Panel Study. There are five parts to the CES Common Content – sample identifiers (including state and congressional district), profile questions (largely demographic), pre-election questions, post-election questions, and contextual data (including candidate names and parties, election results, and roll call votes). This codebook provides question wordings, values, and frequencies presented of the variables for the Common Content dataset. In the dataset, each of these questions include either a “CC20”, “CC22” or “CC24” prefix or a “_20”, “_22” or “_24” suffix to indicate whether the variable refers to the value from the 2020, 2022, or 2024 wave of the study.

Study Design

The 2020 CES survey was conducted over the Internet by YouGov. The Common Content was asked of 61,000 adults interviewed in September-October 2020 (for pre-election data), and in November-December 2020 (for post-election data). The sampling method uses YouGov’s matched random sample methodology. For more information on the sampling and weighting for the 2020 study, please see the Guide to the 2020 Cooperative Election Study.

For this recontact survey, the aim was to re-interview at least 5,000 respondents who had completed the 2020 CES and 2022 Recontact. It was fielded among 6,175 respondents who had responded to the 2020 CES common content and the 2022 recontact survey. The sampling method for these recontacted respondents also uses YouGov’s matched random sample methodology.

The 2020 publicly released recontact content file included 61,000 pre-election interviews and 51,551 respondents who completed both waves of the 2020 recontact interviews. In 2022, YouGov attempted to recontact a representative subset of this sample amounting to a total of 14,787 respondents. Ultimately, 11,792 completed the recontact survey. 780 respondents were then discarded from the sample for failing quality control checks, leading to a final sample of 11,015 respondents who were then weighted to be representative of American adults. In 2024, YouGov attempted to recontact the entire 11,015 sample from 2022. Ultimately, 7,058 completed the recontact survey. 883 were then discarded for failing quality control checks, leading to a final sample of 6,175 respondents who were then weighted to be representative of American adults.

Sampling Frame and Matching

YouGov employed a politically representative “modeled frame” of U.S. citizens. The sampling frame is based upon the 2019 American Community Survey (ACS) public use microdata file, with modeled political variables, such as voter registration and 2020 Presidential vote, using public voter file records, the 2020 Current Population Survey (CPS) Voting and Registration supplements, the 2020 National Election Pool (NEP) exit poll, and the 2020 CES surveys.

The sample drawn for the CES were chosen from the YouGov Panel using a six-way cross-classification (age \times gender \times race \times education \times region \times sample source). All respondents who completed the pre-election survey were re-invited to the post-election survey. The final set of completed pre-election interviews were then matched to the target frame, using a weighted Euclidean distance metric conditioning on registration status \times age \times race \times gender \times education.

Weighting

The sample is weighted to adjust for any remaining imbalance that exists among the matched sample. Such imbalance results from the fact that the closest match for a particular individual from the target sample is not necessarily a perfect match across all demographics as well as the possibility of panel attrition, whereby some respondents are more likely to respond to the recontact survey. The matched cases and the frame were combined and the combined cases were balanced on multiple moment conditions using the politically representative citizen frame.

Weighting took place in two stages. The CES sample was weighted to match the distributions of the frame on gender, age, race, Hispanic origin, education level, and 2020 presidential vote choice and turnout. The moment conditions included age, gender, education, race, presidential vote, plus their interactions. The resultant weights were then adjusted by iterative proportional fitting (“raking”) on age, gender, education, race, “born again” status, voter registration status, 2020 Presidential vote choice, and some joint distributions of these as needed. Additionally, for the common content, the sample was raked to be representative within state, and included statewide political races (for governor and senator).

A second set of weights was constructed in 2022 after matching the survey to the TargetSmart voterfile. Respondents for whom there was a validated voter registration record were weighted using the same approach as described above, but this time to ensure that those individuals were representative of registered voters (using the sample of registered voters in the politically representative frame).

Using Weights

Note that the recontact survey includes weights for both the Pre Election and Post Election waves of the study. The weights are constructed to ensure that the sample is representative of different populations – either adult Americans or adult Americans who are registered to vote.

Variable name	Respondent group	Target population
<code>commonweight_24</code>	All respondents	Adults
<code>commonpostweight_24</code>	Answered both waves	Adults
<code>vvweight_22</code>	Matched to validated registration record	Registered adults
<code>vvweight_post_22</code>	Answered all waves & matched to registration record	Registered adults

We recommend the use of “`commonweight_24`” any time researchers wish to characterize the opinions and behaviors of adult Americans. However, use “`commonpostweight_24`” when you wish to characterize the opinions and behaviors of adult Americans but you are using any items from the post-election wave of the questionnaire.

We recommend the use of “`vvweight_22`” or “`vvweight_post_22`” any time researchers wish to characterize the opinions, behaviors, or traits of voters or registered voters. The “vv” stands for “voter validated” and these weights are missing for all respondents who were not validated as (active) registered voters.

If seeking to characterize the opinions, behaviors, or traits of 2022 voters, use “`vvweight_22`” or “`vvweight_post_22`” in conjunction with the vote validation variables.

Analysis of Panel Attrition

Attrition is one of the most serious challenges for panel survey collection. The 2000-2004 ANES panel successfully retained just 748 of their 1,807 original respondents (41%) across all five waves of the study; 59% of respondents completed the first three years of the panel. Attrition can cause problems for researchers because of the loss of statistical power resulting from a reduced sample size and the fact that attrition rates are higher from some groups than for others. For example, non-whites and those with higher levels of residential mobility are significantly more likely to leave online survey panels than whites. This issue causes an imbalance in a panel, leading some groups to be overrepresented while others are underrepresented.

Our approach to building a multi-year panel addressed both of these concerns through the study design and by taking advantage of the techniques that YouGov uses to generate their samples. With most panels, an initial sample is collected and then the researchers attempt to re-contact all respondents. Typically, attrition in this context is caused by the refusal of some respondents to be re-interviewed; thus, attrition constitutes a form of selection bias. Survey researchers generally attempt to address this bias using a combination of statistical approaches and the addition of new respondents to the panel to re-balance the sample. Unfortunately, refreshing the panel with new respondents is of limited benefit since these new respondents cannot be used for any analyses that require responses across all time periods.

The sample selection issues introduced by attrition rates become more severe as the size of the initial sample grows smaller. Thus, because the ANES panel began with just 2,360 recruits, attrition rates reduced the sample to just 578 respondents who completed each wave. Fortunately, we start with a much larger base of panelists who completed the pre- and post-election surveys in 2020.

Table 1: Sample composition in 2020, 2022, and 2024 (Unweighted)

Attribute	2020 CES	2022 Panel	2024 Panel
Male	42.3%	43.6%	44.4%
Female	57.7%	56.4%	55.5%
White	70.8%	70.3%	74%
Black	11.1%	11.8%	10.2%
Hispanic	11.5%	10.6%	9.1%
College degree	36.9%	40.4%	41.4%
Democrat	48.1%	47.7%	47.1%
Republican	33.5%	35.4%	37.2%
Employed	47.1%	46.9%	45.9%
Retired	21.1%	25.6%	30.0%
Married	47.1%	56.8%	58.9%
Registered to vote (Self-reported)	88.8%	93.8%	94.8%
Voted in 2020 (Self-reported)	88.4%	90.8%	91.3%
Voted in 2020 (Validated)	70.6%	82.1%	84.3%
Voted in 2022 (Validated)	–	82.1%	87.8%
Age in 2020	48.4	53.8	55.9

It is important to be attentive to differential attrition among particular subgroups. Indeed, one of the most significant issues with panel attrition is that some groups are more prone to attrition than others. The table below includes a demographic comparison of the 2020 CES sample from which the 2022 panelists were recruited to those who were included on the 2020-2022 panel dataset and those who were included on the 2020-2024 panel dataset. On many of the measures, the differences between the base sample and the panel are rather small. Importantly, there do not appear to be any partisan differences in attrition rates. However, there are some groups for whom attrition was more likely. In particular, voters were more likely to be successfully retained in the recontact survey compared to non-voters. The same was true for college educated respondents, retired respondents, and older respondents. Nevertheless, the large size of the panel makes this modest sample attrition manageable. The weights described above adjust the sample to ensure it is nationally representative even after accounting for attrition.

Vote Validation

2022 and 2024 Vote Validation

For the 2022 and 2024 waves, individual records were matched to the TargetSmart database of registered voters in the United States. Matching was performed in August 2023 and August 2025. It should be noted that a record may not be matched either because the individual is not registered to vote or because of incomplete or inaccurate information that prevented a match. Matches are made only with records for which there is a high level of confidence that the respondent is being assigned to the correct record. However, even by setting a high threshold of confidence, there will still be some false-positives which should be considered when using the validation records.

The validation variables are described here:

Among the recontacted respondents that were matched to the voter files (i.e., were registered), approximately 89 percent were determined to have voted in the 2022 General Election and 94 percent were determined to have voted in the 2024 general election. If a person has any non-missing value below 7 for TS_g2022, TS_g2024, TS_p2022, TS_p2024, TS_pp2024, they have a validated vote record for that election. IA missing value on these variables means that the respondent was not matched to the voter file.

There are three possible ways to measure turnout. We use the 2022 general election turnout variable to demonstrate these options. Two use only the "TS_g2022" vote validation variable while the third uses this variable in conjunction with self-reported registration (votereg_post) and self-reported turnout (CC22_401).

1. Un-matched as non-voters. The first specification defines voters as respondents with a validated voting record no matter their mode of participation, and defines non-voters as both matched non-voters and non-matched respondents. This specification retains the integrity of the full CES sample, no missing values are created. The justification for this approach is the fact that the most common reason that TargetSmart will not have a record for an individual is because that individual is not registered to vote. Indeed, rates of self-reported non-registration and non-voting are much higher among un-matched respondents than among those for whom there is a match.

2. Only matched non-voters as non-voters. The second specification defines non-voters as only matched non-voters. This specification reduces the CES sample and results in validated turnout estimates that are larger than those in the first specification. However, this specification increases the level of certainty in the identification of non-voters in the CES, because there could possibly be actual voters among non-matched respondents.
3. Matched non-voters and self-reported non-voters as non-voters. The third specification defines non-voters as (1) matched non-voters, (2) non-matched respondents who reported not being registered to vote in the “votereg_post” question, and (3) non-matched respondents who are self-reported non-voters in the “CC22_401” question. This definition excludes non-matched respondents who are self-reported voters (these individuals would be coded as missing). This definition assumes that self-reported non-voters are honest about their non-participation because there is no incentive to go against the democratic norm of participation.

Note that the data received from YouGov and TargetSmart lists the response options for “TS_partyreg” and “TS_p2022_party” by abbreviations shown below. For the sake of clarity and consistency with past codings, we included a key below which connects the full party name to the three letter values used in the data and guide. For example, the responses shown below as “dem (Democratic Party)” will appear as “dem” in the datafile.

dem	Democratic Party
green	Green Party
ind	Independent

Variable Guide

The remainder of this guide provides a listing of each variable included in the recontact survey and the variable name for the 2020, 2022, and 2024 wave. (The column includes an “N/A” if the variable was not asked in that wave of the survey). There is also a final column for notes to explain any discrepancies between the variable as asked in the three waves.

Please consult the questionnaires on Dataverse and the list of frequently asked questions on our website to examine more information, like (a) the branching structure of the questions asked, (b) the order in which the questions were asked (the order in this guide is not necessarily the order in which questions were asked), (c) the grid structure of the questions (this guide disaggregates grid questions into rows).

2020 Notes

If your state were to have a budget deficit this year it would have to raise taxes on income and sales or cut spending, such as on education, health care, welfare, and road construction. What would you prefer more, raising taxes or cutting spending? Choose a point along the scale from 100% tax increases (and no spending cuts) to 100% spending cuts (and no tax increases). The point in the middle means that the budget should be balanced with equal amounts of spending cuts and tax increases. If you are not sure, or don't know, please check the 'not sure' box

Raise sales tax vs. Raise income tax

If the state had to raise taxes, what share of the tax increase should come from increased income taxes and what share from increased sales taxes? Choose a point along the scale from 100% from sales (and none from income) to 100% from income (and none from sales). The point in the middle means that any increase in taxes should come equally from sales and income taxes. If you are not sure, or don't know, please check the 'not sure' box.
